

Additional Resources

This section contains a myriad of additional reference tools, including select articles, an annotated bibliography, specific initiatives implemented at schools of medicine, and example evaluation tools for assessing professionalism. Finding effective mechanisms for evaluating professionalism among physicians, nurses, and other staff members is in its infancy. However, the ACGME is keenly aware of this issue, and is actively assembling tools on this subject.

As initially stated, instituting a culture of professionalism is an organization-specific initiative. Subsequently, this toolkit serves as a collection of diverse resources that can be used individually or in aggregate to advance professionalism within the organization.
